Hello, friends, and welcome to the first issue of Division 13. Since we don't have any letters this time, how about a sneak peek at what awaits you in issue #2? Feast your eyes upon the stellar artwork of penciller Chris Alexander, and inker Mike Sellers, our new, regular art team on Division 13. With Keith Giffen retaining the writing slot and James Sinclair's moody colors, this book is sure to be a favorite amongst the most discriminating readers. This issue's cover was drawn by Chris Alexander and inked by the incomparable Terry Austin. Cover colors are by James Sinclair and our series designer is the unflappable Scott Tice. Until next time... — M.

NEXT ISSUE: Things just get curiously and curiously as the adventure continues. Lamb and crew meet up with a couple of refugees from Block 13 who, as one might well expect, have some rather unique personality quirks. And, as if that wasn't enough, our jolly band picks out a pet, or as is the case with most families, the pet picks them. What could it all mean? I'm not sure, but I feel an old "RUSH" song coming on...
